Introduction

Our school is a community where pupils, parents and teachers collaborate and work in partnership for our children. When parents decide to send their child to our school they are entering a very important relationship. “Partnership is a working relationship that is characterised by a shared sense of purpose, mutual respect and a willingness to negotiate.” Gillian Pugh, Working Towards Partnership in the Early Years.

Rationale

In keeping with the principles of multi-denominational education, our school is democratically run. This means that management committees that are democratically elected run it, and the involvement of all parents is sought and encouraged. A high level of parental involvement is a feature of our school and requires a commitment from parents.

Parents, as a group have a range of talents, abilities and skills that have the potential to enrich and extend the educational opportunities provided for the children. It is our policy to identify parents with specific skills and to invite those parents to share their skills with us at a school and a class level.

Respect for the professional role of the teacher and the statutory responsibilities of the Principal, Patron and the Board of Management is always an important consideration.

Parents are invited to become involved in the school in many ways and at many levels, for example:

- Serving on school bodies (Board of Management, DSP Executive, Parent-Teacher Association, Educate Together)
- Fundraising
- Policy making, e.g. Code of Discipline; Relationships and Sexuality Education; Religious Education Programme; Parent-Teacher Association Constitution; Homework; School Lunch Box.
- In the classroom

Benefits of Parental Involvement

- Children benefit from greater diversity in the classroom.
- Children profit from more one-to-one attention.
- Parental skills may support and complement work already taking place.
- Parental involvement actively supports and encourages the child's learning.
- A wide range of activity is facilitated. This can be interesting and fun, and can lead to a broader and more holistic education
- It promotes ‘good parent/teacher relationships and a better level of understanding between home and school’ (National Parents’ Council).
- It enhances communication, trust and respect between parents and teachers.
- Parents can learn about the curriculum.
- Parental involvement allows children to see that school is an extension of home and therefore fosters the idea of the ‘school family.’

- Parental skills can contribute to the smooth running and development of the school.
- Parental involvement provides the opportunity of making lifelong friends.

How to Get Involved

- Parents are, first of all, invited to consider their skills, interests and time available, and communicate this information to the class teacher, the principal and/or to the PTA.
- Parents can consult with the class teacher about hobbies, skills or interests they can share with the class, bearing in mind that needs change from year to year.
- Parents can work in conjunction with the teachers in a planned and co-ordinated way. For example, they could help with library and shared reading book exchange, assist at art times, work with the children at various curricular activities and lend a welcome hand in many other areas which can be identified with the teacher.
- Ongoing projects over a number of weeks may enhance and enrich the work the children are involved with in the classroom. Parents are encouraged to discuss any ideas they may have with the teacher.
- Parents can help with tours and trips, organising the school library, art and P.E. resources, and may also like to make costumes and sets for school concerts.
- Parents are currently involved in many extra-curricular activities such as chess, yoga, football, music and art, and would be particularly welcome to initiate project work with the children in the areas of the school garden, a children's newsletter etc.
- Opportunities are endless – baking, woodwork, cultural exchanges and discussion...the school welcomes all ideas.

Please note that an appendix to this document contains guidelines for parents in the classroom and a confidentiality form.

Review

Appendix 1: Guidelines for Getting Involved

1. Parents come into the classroom at the invitation of the teacher by prior arrangement and for an agreed purpose.
2. Parents must be Garda vetted.
3. The happiness, welfare and safety of our children are our primary concern. A child's personal history and academic achievements are strictly confidential. Any doubts about issues of confidentiality must be discussed with the teacher.
4. Respect for the teachers in their professional capacity is essential.
5. Discipline remains the responsibility of the teacher.
6. All work will be supervised by the teacher.
7. Parents who participate should be conscious of and sensitive to the needs of the entire class, not just the needs of their own child
8. Parents coming into the classroom must consult with the teacher before inviting other parents/individuals to participate.
9. In the interests of safety toddlers and younger children cannot be accommodated during a classroom activity.
10. The highest standard of behaviour and language is expected.
11. Punctuality and consistency are crucial
12. No fees are payable. Any expenses that you wish to reclaim must be sanctioned in advance by the teacher, and must be accompanied by receipts.
13. In the case of an ongoing project that takes place over a number of weeks, parents will meet with the teacher to discuss the activity. It remains the responsibility of the teacher to determine its appropriateness (e.g. is it suitable for the age group, has something similar already been done etc.). The teacher has the final say in the event that he/she feels it is falling short of its original aims and objectives.
14. The school ethos must be upheld at all times and it is important to keep in mind that the school is multi-denominational, co-educational, child centred and democratic. Consequently, respect for all the partners in education - children, teachers and parents - must be upheld at all times.

Parents will be asked to sign an agreement to abide by the school policy on Parental Involvement in the School (see Appendix 2).
